

TRACING THE ANTHROPOCENE

South Australian Museum

Tanya Voges

Government of South Australia
Department of the Premier
and Cabinet

guildhouse

FLOODLIGHT

Presenting Partners

Supporting Partner

EXPLORING TRACE WORKSHOP

Watch Tanya's video for instructions and follow the tips below to complete the workshop.

For this dance and drawing task you can work with a partner, a large piece of paper and any drawing implements. If you want to go really big you could go outside and draw on the driveway or concrete with large chalk!

MUSIC OPTIONS FOR THE WORKSHOP TASKS

You can pause the video to give more time to do the partner drawing task and again when you interpret the lines with your own dance moves.

Here are some suggested music options for you to use for inspiration that are in a Spotify Playlist.

To access the playlist click on the link below:

Spotify Playlist
Tracing the Anthropocene Workshop

EXTEND YOUR CREATIVITY

As you look at the lines that you have made and the spaces between them perhaps you can see some interesting shapes within the symmetrical drawings.

Choosing different colours you could fill in some of the spaces that you select by colouring them in, adding patterns or simply outlining the irregular shapes to draw more interesting textures.

DISCOVER MORE

Some wonderful resources exist on the South Australian Museum website like the Ediacaran fossils of the Flinders Ranges ebook that provide detailed information about some of the Ediacaran Fossils.

Project LIVE uses Kuula for an interactive 360 look around the Ediacaran Gallery at the South Australia Museum. Both are wonderful education resources accessed via the links below:

Ediacaran fossils of the Flinders Ranges
Kuula 360 View

Government of South Australia
Department of the Premier
and Cabinet

guildhouse

FLOODLIGHT

Presenting Partners

Supporting Partner

